ALEXANDRIA, VA. THURSDAY, AUGUST 4, 1870

THE EUROPEAN WAR NEWS .- The Prussia frontier has been crossed, the town of Saarbrucken taken and occupied, and thus the first success of the campaign achieved by the French. Saarbrucken is situated on the Saar river about fifty miles east of Metz. The French the steam transportation eastward from the journals publish the following account of the affair :

"The French troops passed the frontier at 11 o'clock. They instantly encountered the the Atlantic. Prussians, strongly posted on the heights com-Prussians to evacuate it in great haste. Gendivisions of the enemy. The buildings in Saar bruck caught fire from the French artillery and half the town was destroyed. Mitrailleuse were used for the first time, and are reported to have worked wonders.'

The Emperor, on his return to Metz after the battle, sent the following telegraphic dis patch to the Empress:

"Louis has received his baptism of fire. He was admirably cool and little impressed. A in condition. division of Frossard's command carried the keeps a ball he picked up. The soldiers wept tagion. at his tranquillity. We lost an officer and ten and ten NAPOLEON.

Metz was illuminated at night in honor of the victory. After the retreat of the Prussians the French did not compy the place.

The Empress, with her nieces, went to the Chapel of Notre Dame des Victores, to offer prayers of thanksgiving for the salety and success of the Emperor.

The Prussian account of the affair is contained in the following "official" dispatch.

"Yesterday a small detachment stationed at Saarbruck was attacked by three French diviabandoned, the Prussians falling back on their from the same cause. In Russell and Tazewell sions. After a sharp action the position was supports. Loss trifling.'

The New York Evening Post thinks the prospect of a speedy and general revival of trade is good, and says: "The business of this city is again reviving from the depression usual appearance of the distemper in Fauquier coun during the hot season, and which the financial ty and elsewhere, wherever Texan cattle have condition of the country has this year made very marked. The important houses are pre paring for large sales, and evidently expect the fall trade to begin early and actively. The country generally is in a favorable condition for a fair year's business; and the extreme dull ness of principal wholesale markets of late has doubtless given time for a general reduction of stocks in the towns and villages of the interior. Meanwhile prices for most classes of goods remain lower than for many years, in spite of the recent excitement in the gold market.

The Cattle Disease.

The appearance of a malignant and fatal discase among cattle in Fauquier county and in and around Lynchburg is attracting considerable attention. The Lynchburg News contains a long article on the subject from which we take the following : -"The disease is sometimes called the "Spanish Fever," sometimes the "Spenic Fever." but is generally known as the "Texas Cattle Disease." On the breaking out of the disease at the different halting places of Texan cattle during the summer of 1866, the United States Government appointed a commission to ininvestigate its nature and cause. This investigation was entered upon, and extended through several of the Western States and Territories. Post mortem examinations, not only of diseas ed native stock but of Texan cattle, were care fully made, and an elaborate report prepared for submission to Congress. This report distinetly states "that all the investigations tend to connect the migrating herds of the Gulf coast unmistakably with the existence and spread of the disease.

"This disease was formerly confined to the frontiers, and it is only recently, when the importers of these cattle availed themselves of frontier railway stations, and from different points on the Mississippi river, that the contagion has been brought into the heart of the country, and scattered from the Mississippi to

"It is a most remarkable fact, that hundred: manding Saarbruck, which were carried by a of these cattle may be herded for weeks or tew battalions. That, though Texan cattle may have been imported for two or three months, and no disease been communicated by them, as soon as very hot weather sets in the disease is liable to be developed among the native cattle, even although Texan cattle remain free from disease and may, in fact, be rapidly improving

And now, the predictions of those who have observed the progress of the disease have been realized, as they looked forward with confidence to the lately been introduced.'

Writing upon the same subject, the Repub lican of the same city says:

"The disease seems to consist of a kind of vermin, about the size of a cuckle-burr, with dark heads and white-blueish bodies, and thousands are soon produced on the animal, of the ize of chigos or flaxseed, that eat through the kin and soon produce death. The Texas catthe have thick, tough skins, and they do not penetrate to their flash as they do with ours, so that Texas cattle will be perfectly healthy with the vermin upon them, while ours will soon die. We have seen only one remedy yet used that seemed to give any relief, and that was washing the animal over with carbolic soap. We do not know that it is a cure. It is a pre-

> It is therefore requested that you will pub lish the following facts in the case only as an act of justice.

> For the purpose of raising funds to repair a church in this county, an excursion was projected to the former residence and present resting place of Washington, as affording for the first time to many of our citizens the opportunity of making the inspection.

> Upon their arrival at the wharf there, they were met by two men, who informed them that before they could land, each pessenger would have to pay 60 cents.

> The price was so exorbitant, especially as the knowledge was conveyed for the first time bat such a sum was to be paid for such a visit, that many refused to take their families ashore, and it was only after the Captain of the 'Smith' said he had received a note to come to the house, that the party landed. It is submitted to the public, whose attention has been unwarrantably called to the office, that the excursion was a highly respectable one for a very laudable purpose, and composed in the main of ladies and children, all anxious to see, for the first time the "Home of the Father of his Country. Offers were repeatedly made to pay 15 ets. per head or any other reasonable sum, but they were not listened to, and when the Cap tain of the "Arrow" was javited on board of the "Smith" with the statement that he should receive a just sum from the party, he persis tently declined any thing less than the far cents per passenger.

As to the threats alinded to, there is no within the recollection of any one present any thing approximating to a menace, save when the "Captain of the Arrow" remarked that lines off and was responded to by a gentleman, that he would have river water to drink it h.

For example - unless persons from the lower Potemae go to Washington and take the "Arrow" for Mount Version they must pay upon landing any sum the Captain of that commodious steamer may decide upon!!

Mrs. Burch looking up saw a rattlesnake, about three feet long and about the larmed she rushed into the house with the child attack the reptile with a hoc, and struck him one blow which disabled him, and dropping the hoe ran into the house; in the meantime Mrs. B. returned with that truly feminine weapon, a bucket of hot water, and threw it on his Among the chaplains in the French service snakeship; his contortions under this hydropath ic treatment are said to have been fearful; he struck at everything in reach and frequently bit himself, and finally expired. Pine gives an account of a combat he witnessed a few days ago in the mountains; he was attracted by an unusual noise in the bushes and approaching it he saw a rattlesnake in a striking attitude, but perfectly still, except as he shook his rattles and moved his head to watch the movements of a large blacksnake that was circling around him very rapidly, gradually and cautiously narrowing the circle. After this manoeuvra had been frequently repeated and the circle very much narrowed, the rattlesnake a vidently thought the blacksnake in striking distance, or which he threw himself at his enemy with venomons precision, but the blacksnake adroit y evaded the blow, and having drawn the tire of his antagonist threw himself upon him and eizing him by the neck killed him almost instantly. -Clark Co.
